

Arnold's 2024 Blueprint

Subscribe to the Pump Club here!

Yesterday, you figured out your vision. You sat down and thought about who you want to be and why.

Today, it's time to start the work of making that vision a reality.

Your vision might be big. You might want to lose 50 pounds or learn a new language. No matter how big or life-changing it is, I want you to break it up into smaller daily goals.

One of the parts of my book that people love the most is where I explain why you should start with small goals. As you find daily wins, it allows you to zoom out and find the bigger vision.

First, create little goals for yourself. Don't worry about the big, broad stuff for now. Focus on making improvements and banking achievements one day at a time. They can be exercise goals, nutrition goals. They can be about networking or reading or getting your house organized. Start doing things you like to do or that make you proud of yourself for having completed them. Do those things every day with a little goal attached to them, and then notice how doing that changes what you pay attention to. All of a sudden you will find yourself looking at things differently.

Arnold Schwarzenegger
Be Useful: Seven Tools for Life

#kindlequotes

ONCE YOU'VE DEVELOPED A RHYTHM WITH THOSE LITTLE DAILY GOALS, CREATE WEEKLY AND THEN MONTHLY GOALS. INSTEAD OF ZOOMING IN FROM A BROAD PLACE, BUILD OUT YOUR LIFE FROM THIS SMALL BEGINNING AND LET YOUR VISION OPEN UP IN FRONT OF YOU FROM THERE. AS IT DOES, AND THE SENSE OF USELESSNESS STARTS TO LOOSEN ITS GRIP, THAT'S WHEN YOU TAKE THE SECOND STEP: PUT THE MACHINES AWAY AND CREATE SPACE AND TIME IN YOUR LIFE, HOWEVER SMALL OR SHORT IN THE BEGINNING, FOR INSPIRATION TO FIND ITS WAY IN AND FOR THE DISCOVERY PROCESS TO HAPPEN. I KNOW THIS ISN'T AS EASY AS IT SOUNDS. LIFE GETS CROWDED AND COMPLICATED AS YOU GET OLDER. IT CAN BE HARD TO FIND SPACE AND TIME AND NOT FEEL LIKE YOU'RE TRADING OFF SOME BIGGER SET OF RESPONSIBILITIES, ESPECIALLY NOW THAT YOU'VE GOT THESE LITTLE DAILY, WEEKLY, AND MONTHLY GOALS THAT YOU'RE CRUSHING. AND GUESS WHAT, IT IS HARD AT FIRST. BUT DO YOU KNOW WHAT'S HARDER? LIVING A LIFE YOU HATE. THAT'S HARD. THIS, BY COMPARISON, IS A WALK IN THE PARK.

Arnold Schwarzenegger

Be Useful: Seven Tools for Life

#kindlequotes

You change your life by changing your days, one day at a time.

Instead of just making a vague resolution, my goal for you is to simply write down three daily goals.

Make your daily goals something that stretches you, but don't make them something so big that you'll fail.

Recommended by LinkedIn

If you walk 5,000 steps a day now and want to walk 10,000, let's start with a smaller goal: 7,500 steps a day. Write that down, and then mark it off every day with a tally mark. After a couple of months, when you're hitting 7,500 easily, grow your goal to 10,000.

If you read 12 books last year, don't set a goal to read 50 this year. Shoot for reading at least 10 minutes a day and mark that off until it becomes automatic, then grow your goal to 20 or 30 minutes.

Success creates more success, so we want to pick goals that make us a little better but not goals so big that you fail and get derailed and give up.

We gave the Pump app an easy way to track their three daily goals and mark them down off. The members love the daily action planner, so you can use that or you can just do it the old school way with tallies on a notecard.

Article content

The Pump app makes it easier to build habits and routines

You might think that just focusing on three little daily goals seems small. Trust me, as your wins add up and you achieve your goals every day, you will see huge progress after a month or two.

You'll look back and wonder how you achieved so much and realize that big, long-term success is about the little things you do every single day until they become routine.

Now it's time for your homework. Go write down your three daily goals. I'll be checking in with you all month to pump you up and keep you on track!