$400 WA Household Electricity Credit

The State Government is committed to helping ease cost of living pressures and provide support to Western Australian households.

As part of the WA Budget, the State Government is using its strong budget surplus by giving you and every WA household a $400 credit on your residential electricity bill.

This means $445 million in total will be delivered back to all Western Australian households, providing genuine support to ease the cost of living at a time when household costs are rising due to many factors, including international events.

The $400 credit will remain on your electricity account until it runs out.

Including the assistance provided by this $400 credit, the cost of household fees and charges in WA will decrease by 3.8 per cent this year for the average household.

Combined with the $600 electricity credit provided in 2020, all Western Australian households have now received a total of $1,000 in electricity assistance.

In addition, the Energy Assistance Payment will provide a further $318 for eligible Western Australians. A range of other support measures are also available for households in need.

I hope that this credit and other targeted support goes some way to help your family and all Western Australian households.

Terms and conditions apply. A small number of residential households may receive the credit via a different process; for more information visit www.wa.gov.au
