

Email Outreach Templates

All templates are modular — fill in [BRACKETED] fields with your details.

For: [Your Name / Collective Name] · Version 1.0 · 2025

How to Use These Templates

Each template is designed to be personalised before sending. The most important rule: fill in every [BRACKET] — especially the first sentence, which should always reference something specific about the recipient.

- Replace all [BRACKETS] with real content before sending
- Never send the same first line twice — always personalise the opening
- Keep subject lines short (under 8 words) and avoid words like 'proposal', 'opportunity', or 'partnership'
- Send from a custom domain email (name@yourstudio.com.au), never a free email provider
- Use plain text for cold emails — HTML templates trigger spam filters
- Send at business hours (9am–11am or 2pm–4pm) for best open rates

Timing reminder: Follow-up Day 4–5 after cold email, Day 10–12 for second follow-up, Day 18–21 for final close.

1. Independent Musicians & Bands

Best used after briefly checking out their music. The more specific you can be about their sound in the first line, the better your reply rate will be.

1A — Cold Outreach (Individual Version)

SUBJECT LINE: Your track [Song Name] — quick note from [Your Name]

Hi [Name],

I came across your [single / EP / profile] on [Instagram / Bandcamp / Spotify] and genuinely loved [specific thing — e.g., the layering in the chorus of 'Song Name']. [One sentence on what stood out.]

I'm [Your Name], a mixing and mastering engineer based in Perth. I work primarily with [indie / punk / hip-hop / etc.] artists, and I think your sound could really open up with the right mix — more space in the low mids, a bit more air on the vocals, that kind of thing.

I offer a free 5-minute reference mix of one of your tracks so you can hear the difference before committing to anything. No strings attached.

Would that be useful?

[Your Name]

[Email] · [Website] · [SoundCloud/Portfolio Link]

1B — Cold Outreach (Collective Version)

SUBJECT LINE: Your music + our ears — a quick intro

Hi [Name],

We came across your [single / EP] on [Platform] and have been listening — particularly loved [specific element]. Really strong sense of identity in your sound.

We're [Studio Name], a small collective of audio engineers based in Perth working across mixing, mastering, and production. We tend to work with artists who have a clear vision and just need someone to help the recordings catch up with it.

If you're working on new material, we'd love to offer a free reference mix of one track — no obligation, just a chance to hear what we might do with your music. It usually takes us about 24 hours.

Worth a listen?

[Your Name] — on behalf of the [Studio Name] team

[hello@studiodomain.com] · [www.studiodomain.com]

1C — Follow-Up (Day 4–5)

SUBJECT LINE: Re: Your track [Song Name] — quick note from [Your Name]

Hi [Name],

Just following up on my note from earlier in the week. Totally understand if the timing's not right — I know releasing and recording cycles don't always align.

One thing I wanted to add: I work on a fixed-fee basis with no hidden charges, and I always quote before I start work. So there are no surprises.

If you're ever curious what a professional mix could do for your sound, the offer of a free reference track stands.

[Your Name]

[Website / Portfolio]

1D — Follow-Up (Day 10–12)

SUBJECT LINE: One last thing, [Name] — then I'll leave you to it

Hi [Name],

Last one from me, I promise.

I just finished a [genre] EP that I think might be up your alley. Happy to share it so you can hear the kind of work I do: [Portfolio Link or streaming link].

If the timing is ever right for mixing or mastering, I'm here. And if you already have someone you love working with — that's great too. Just wanted to put my work in front of you.

Cheers,

[Your Name]

2. Studios & Labels

Tone should be professional and brief. Studio managers and A&R staff are busy. Lead with capability and delivery confidence, not enthusiasm.

2A — Cold Outreach

SUBJECT LINE: Overflow mixing / post — [Your Name / Studio Name]

Hi [Name],

I'm [Your Name], a [mixing engineer / audio post engineer] with [X] years working on [genre / format]. I'm reaching out to introduce myself as a potential overflow resource for [Studio/Label Name].

Quick background: I specialise in [your core skill — e.g., mixing for indie/alternative, broadcast audio delivery, game audio]. I'm comfortable working fast to spec, and I've never missed a delivery deadline.

A few recent projects: [Project 1 — artist/format], [Project 2], [Project 3]. Full reel here: [Link].

Happy to provide references on request.

If your capacity ever gets tight or you need a specific skill covered, I'd be keen to be on your list.

[Your Name]

[Email] · [Website] · [LinkedIn]

2B — Follow-Up (Day 5–7)

SUBJECT LINE: Re: Overflow mixing / post — [Your Name]

Hi [Name],

Just following up in case my previous note got buried. No pressure at all — I know studio inboxes move fast.

If it's easier, I'm happy to share a one-page overview of what I offer and my typical rates. No commitment required from your end.

Happy to jump on a 10-minute call too if that's a quicker way to decide if it's worth keeping my details on file.

[Your Name]

[Phone / Email]

3. Film, TV & Advertising Agencies

Post supervisors and producers care about credits, spec compliance, and speed. Don't use audio jargon they might not know. Mention R128/LUFS only if you're confident they'll understand it.

3A — Cold Outreach

SUBJECT LINE: Audio post for [Company Name] — [Your Name]

Hi [Name],

I'm [Your Name], an audio post-production engineer based in Perth. I work on short films, documentaries, and commercial content — dialogue editing, sound design, final mix, and broadcast delivery.

I came across [Company Name]'s recent work on [Project / Platform] and thought there might be a good fit. I deliver to broadcast spec (ATSC A/85, EBU R128) and am comfortable with quick turnarounds.

Recent credits include: [Project 1 — format and brief description], [Project 2], [Project 3].

If you ever need an audio post resource for a project — particularly for something with a tight deadline — I'd love to be on your supplier list.

Happy to send a full reel and credits: [Portfolio Link].

[Your Name]

[Email] · [LinkedIn]

3B — Follow-Up (Day 5–7)

SUBJECT LINE: Re: Audio post — [Your Name]

Hi [Name],

Quick follow-up on my note from last week. I know productions can be unpredictable timing-wise, so I just wanted to make sure my details were easy to find when a project does come up.

I'm particularly good for:

- Short-notice turnarounds (I typically respond same day)
- Projects where you need broadcast-spec delivery without the agency markup
- Anything that needs a second set of ears on the mix before client delivery

Reel: [Link]

[Your Name]

4. Content Creators & YouTubers

Be casual and direct. Reference their channel specifically. Avoid technical audio terms. Focus on the outcome (better content, more professional sound, more time saved). A retainer pitch works well here.

4A — Cold Outreach (DM or Email)

SUBJECT LINE: Quick idea for [Channel Name]

Hey [Name],

I've been watching [Channel Name] for a while — really enjoy [specific thing: the editing style, the topics, the production quality]. The content is genuinely good.

One thing I notice: the audio quality could be holding it back a bit. [One specific example — e.g., 'there's some background noise in the latest episode' or 'the voiceover sounds a little thin compared to the music']. Small thing, but audio is often what separates channels that feel professional from those that don't.

I'm an audio engineer. I do editing, noise reduction, and music supervision for creators. I could take your raw recordings and turn them around in 24 hours, polished and consistent, so you can focus on the content itself.

Would it be worth a quick chat? Happy to do a sample edit of one video for free so you can decide if it's useful.

[Your Name]

[Email] · [Website or YouTube]

4B — Follow-Up (Day 4–5)

SUBJECT LINE: Re: Quick idea for [Channel Name]

Hey [Name],

Just checking in — wasn't sure if my message landed. No worries if the timing's not right.

For context: most creators I work with are on a monthly arrangement — I handle all the audio for a set price, so you know exactly what you're spending and there's nothing to chase up. A lot of them say it's the one thing they wish they'd outsourced sooner.

Happy to talk through what that could look like for your channel if you're curious.

[Your Name]

4C — Retainer Pitch (for warm leads)

SUBJECT LINE: Monthly audio — how it works

Hey [Name],

Great to connect! Here's how the monthly arrangement works for most creators I support:

You send me your raw files (or link me to your project folder). I handle all the audio — editing, noise reduction, levelling, music — and deliver the final version within 24 hours, ready to upload.

For a channel posting [X] videos per month, I'd quote a flat monthly rate so you always know what you're paying. No surprises.

Happy to start with one video on a one-off basis so you can see how it works before committing to anything ongoing.

What does your upload schedule typically look like?

[Your Name]

[Email] · [Website]

5. Local Communities (Perth)

Community outreach is about building relationships, not pitching. Lead with contribution and value. The pitch comes later, organically.

5A — Community Group Introduction

SUBJECT LINE: Introduction — audio engineering in Perth

Hi everyone,

I'm [Your Name], an audio engineer based in Perth. I work across music mixing, film post-production, podcast production, and sound design for games — depending on the project.

I've been active in [local area / scene] for [X] years and have worked on [brief 2–3 project examples].

[If collective: I'm part of [Studio Name], a small collective of engineers here in Perth who cover the full audio spectrum — useful for projects that need more than one skillset.]

Happy to answer any audio questions in the group or connect with anyone working on something that might need an engineer. And if you're ever curious what a proper mix or post session might cost for a project, feel free to DM — I'm always happy to have a no-pressure chat.

[Your Name]

[Email] · [Website] · [LinkedIn]

5B — Post-Event Follow-Up

SUBJECT LINE: Great to meet you at [Event Name]

Hi [Name],

Really enjoyed chatting at [Event Name] last [night / week]. [One genuine sentence about what you discussed or something specific about their project.]

As I mentioned, I specialise in [relevant service]. I'd love to stay in touch — particularly if you ever need audio support down the track.

I'll send a connection request on LinkedIn — and feel free to reach out any time if a project comes up.

[Your Name]

[Email] · [LinkedIn] · [Website]

6. General Templates

These templates are used across all segments at specific moments in the client lifecycle.

6A — Referral Request (to a happy past client)

SUBJECT LINE: A quick favour, [Name]?

Hi [Name],

Really glad the [project] came together so well. [One specific positive sentence about the outcome.]

I'm in the middle of building out my client base at the moment, and I'm wondering if you might know anyone who could use audio support — whether that's mixing, podcast editing, film audio, or something else.

If someone comes to mind, a quick intro over email is all it takes. Happy to return the favour however I can.

Either way — thank you again for trusting me with your work.

[Your Name]

6B — Past Client Re-Engagement (3+ months dormant)

SUBJECT LINE: What are you working on at the moment, [Name]?

Hi [Name],

Hope you're doing well. It's been a little while since we wrapped [previous project].

I've been working on a few interesting things lately — [brief example relevant to their world] — and thought of you.

Are you working on anything new at the moment? Happy to catch up for a coffee or a quick call if there's anything I can help with.

[Your Name]

6C — Proposal Follow-Up (sent proposal, no response after 5 days)

SUBJECT LINE: Re: [Project Name] proposal

Hi [Name],

Just following up on the proposal I sent through on [date]. I know these decisions take time, and I'm happy to talk through any questions or adjust the scope if something doesn't fit.

If the budget is the main consideration, let me know and we can explore what's possible at a different scope level.

If you've decided to go in a different direction, totally fine to let me know — I'd rather know so I can keep my calendar accurate.

Either way, I appreciate you considering it.

[Your Name]

6D — Testimonial Request (after project delivery)

SUBJECT LINE: A small request — testimonial for [Your Name / Studio Name]

Hi [Name],

So glad the project came together! Really enjoyed working on [project / track / episode].

I'd love to ask a favour: would you be up for writing a short testimonial — even just 2–3 sentences — about working with me? It would mean a lot, and it helps other artists and clients know what to expect.

If it's easier, here are a few prompts to get you started:

- What was the project, and what were you hoping to achieve with the audio?
- What was the experience like working together?
- Would you recommend [my name / the studio] to others, and if so, why?

No pressure at all — but if you're happy to, I'll add it to the website. Thanks again for the work.

[Your Name]

Appendix: Personalisation Cheatsheet

Use this as a quick reference for personalising your first line before every cold outreach.

Segment	What to reference in your first line
Musicians & Bands	A specific song, lyric, chord change, or mixing choice. Listen before you email.
Studios & Labels	A recent release they worked on, or a genre/artist they're known for signing.
Film & TV Agencies	A specific project they've produced — show you've done your research.
Content Creators	A specific video moment, topic angle, or comment about their content style.
Local Community	A project they mentioned in the community group, or an event you both attended.